25X1 1. On 9 April 1954 80 North Korean soldiers were digging a bunker on top of a small rise at XC-894212 near Tongsan-dong (N 38-07, E 125-10) (XC-8921), Hwanghae Province. The bunker was 8 meters long, 4 meters wide, and 2 meters high, and extended north and south, with both the northern and southern ends open. The bunker was to house a 76-mm. gun which had not yet arrived. A trench extended westward along the side of a hill in back of Tongsan-dong from XC-894212 to the rice paddies at XC-887213. The men stated that they were the third line of defense, with the mission of defending against attacking boats. They received supplies several times a month by truck.

2. As of 9 April a group of 150 North Korean soldiers had built one cave into the side of a hill at XC-876196, large enough to hold 150 men, and were in the process of digging a second cave of the same size. These men stated that they were to be joined by an additional 150 North Korean soldiers in the future.
